- Join a KLA listserve. Find information at <http://klaonline.org/> under the Home tab

It is finally spring time in the Rockies or Kentucky as the case may be. Robins are singing, flowers are blooming, and the Kentucky library world is gearing up for their spring and summer conferences. The week of April 11 will be the hottest and busiest conference week this year. The Kentucky Public Library Association and Kentucky Library Trustees Round Table will be holding their Spring Conference, Kentucky Public Libraries: Making Connections, April 11-13 in Lexington, Kentucky. The Academic Library Section, Special Library Section, and SLA Kentucky Chapter will be holding their Joint Spring Conference, Kickin' It Up A Notch: Improving Our Professional Image, April 13-15 at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Prestonsburg, Kentucky. For more information about these conferences, please see the Kentucky Library Association's website.

In July, the Kentucky School Media Association will be holding its Summer Refresher, Make a Splash @ KSMA Summer Refresher on July 19 at Marshall County High School in Benton, Kentucky. For registration information, click here.

Along with a Kentucky contingent of library professionals and supporters, I will be attending National Library Legislative Day, May 9-10 at the Liaison Hotel in Washington, D.C. to advocate for our libraries. According to the American Library Association, "many changes in Congress now contribute to a new political climate in both the House and the Senate. New members need to hear from you and other constituents." We will be sending out additional information regarding how you can help support NLLD even if you cannot attend in D.C.

Now that spring has arrived, I hate to bring back memories of the cold, dreary, snowy winter; however, I must reflect back to January. Terry Buckner, President-Elect, and I attended the American Library Association's Midwinter Conference in San Diego. We represented the Kentucky Library Association at the Chapter Leaders Forum and the Chapter Relations Committee meetings and were announced at the ALA Council I meeting. We also solicited prospective vendors for the Fall Conference in the exhibit hall.

Speaking of the Fall Conference, plans are well underway for an awesome conference, Information...The Library Superpower! The conference opening session speaker will be Dr. Benjamin Sapp, Director, Mazza Museum. The Mazza Museum is the first and largest teaching museum of original children's book art in the world. Dr. Sapp will take us on a virtual tour of the museum followed by an art exhibit housing several pieces of the collection located in the exhibit hall. Novelist, writer, and producer Linda Bruckheimer will be the KLA Awards Luncheon speaker.

American Library Association 2011-2012 President Molly Raphael will be presenting Libraries: Essential for Learning, Essential for Life. Children's author Phil Bildner will be the luncheon author speaker on Friday. Mr. Bildner's most recent book, out this month, is The Unforgettable Season: Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and the Record-Setting Summer of 1941. We also have many outstanding sessions planned. Note: Mini-session presenters will be notified in April. You do not want to miss Information...The Library Superpower! this fall, so mark your calendars now: the KLA/KSMA Joint Conference, September 28-October 1, 2011, Galt House Hotel & Suites, Louisville, Kentucky.

I hope to see most of you at one of these exciting conferences!

Leoma Dunn, President
Kentucky Library Association

2011 Kentucky Conference on Converging Trends in Teaching & Learning

What do all these things have in common? They come together at the Converging Trends in Teaching and Learning Conference.

At Converging Trends Kentucky's most innovative faculty, IT professionals, librarians, CIOs, administrators, instructional designers, postsecondary educators and P12 teachers will meet to share ideas, learn about one another's worlds and explore the future.

The 2011 Kentucky Conference on Converging Trends in Teaching & Learning conference represents a merger of multiple established conferences, including the Convergence Conference, the KY Scholarship of Teaching and Learning Conference and the Teacher Quality Summit. Converging Trends is the place to go for statewide and national networking focused on innovations in teaching, learning and technology across a range of educational levels.

Information and Technology Roundtable

Is there an ITRT collaboration in your future?

The Information and Technology Roundtable has been discussing its future, and we have a proposal that may interest you! We're planning a program for the KLA Fall conference called Managing KLA's Superpower. If information is the library superpower, then KLA's superpower is embedded in the knowledge, memory and best practices of its members. That power should be shared, but how do we do it? The Information & Technology Roundtable has proposed a collaboratory. We'll discuss how this can work. But what is a collaboratory? ITRT will be talking about that and more in a blog that will be appearing in the coming weeks called the KLA CollaBlog. Look for announcements on the listservs very soon! And keep checking <http://kla-irt.org/collablog/>!

Get Ready To Collaborate!

Cindi Trainor Honored by Library Journal

Cindi Trainor, Technology & Data Services Coordinator at Eastern Kentucky University, has been named one of Library Journal's 2011 Tech Leaders Movers and Shakers. Only 50 librarians are chosen each year for the Movers and Shakers honor, which spotlights librarians and others in the library field that are doing extraordinary work to serve their users and to move libraries of all types and library services forward. According to nominator John

Blyberg, assistant director for innovation and UX at the Darien Library, CT., "[Trainor] has introduced an emerging trend in public libraries—UX design—to the academic environment. She has done so by valuing inclusion, compromise, and, above all, students' ability to access the information they need with ease." Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives

KDLA recently unveiled a new agency website. The site has a fresh look and has been arranged by user communities (Librarians, Archivists, Researchers, State Employees, and Records Management) for ease of use. Also featured are quick links to the following: KDLA

Catalog, e-Archives, Ask a Librarian, Public Library Directory, Kentucky Public Library Job List, Records Retention Schedules, and Kentucky Talking Book Library.

A team of dedicated employees worked over two years to develop the updated website.

The goal is for the site to be helpful to customers and a source of information in a user friendly format.

Morehead State University

Karla Aleman has received a Librarian Scholarship from ACRL to attend the ACRL annual conference in Philadelphia. She will also have a poster session titled "Breaking the Rules to Follow the Rules: Re-thinking APA Citation Style Guides."

Tom Kmetz will also have a poster session at the ACRL annual conference entitled: "Laying the Foundation for a Graphic Novel Collection in an Academic Library."

Clay Howard partnered with

EKU librarian Julie George to present "Make it Stick: Using Active Learning in Library Instruction" at the KLA 2011 Joint Spring Conference.

We are sad to report the February 18 death of Clara Barton Potter-Keyes, long time librarian at the Camden-Carroll Library. Hired as an interlibrary loan librarian in 1987, Clara later became Head of Special Collections. She was instrumental in helping to establish the Kentuckiana Digital Library Project. She also served on the State Advisory Committee on University Records and the Appalachian Studies Advisory Board. Clara was the first librarian at Morehead State University to receive sabbatical leave. She took that time to learn advanced techniques in book repair and book art. Due to health reasons, she retired in 2009 as Assistant Dean of Technical Services, and was awarded Librarian Emeritus status in 2010.

Planning has begun on the 3rd Annual School Librarian Symposium, to be held in June, 2011. Anyone interested in attending or helping is welcome to contact Sandy Sumner, Instruction and Outreach Librarian.

Graves County Middle School Earns First-Place Prize in Scholastic Book Fairs National Contest

Graves County Middle School has earned the first-place prize in the Scholastic Book Fairs National Middle School Student Crew Contest, winning a visit from award-winning author Patrick Carman and $2,000 in books and merchandise from Scholastic, the global children's publishing, education and media company. Graves County Middle School has won the contest several times in the past. The school won the recent semi-annual competition by recruiting a team of 28 students called the Crew and using them to plan and conduct the best middle school Scholastic Book Fair in the nation. The competition encourages schools to run their own exciting Book Fair by creating contests, designing advertising campaigns, hosting activities, and developing themes, all aimed at getting kids to visit the Book Fair and read. ,

During their Book Fair last fall, Graves County Student Crew members adopted the theme "Reading is Sweet" and transformed their library into a "Sweet Read Shoppe," complete with a giant gumball machine, lollipops, candy, and more. Crew members in charge of advertising created their own book fair commercial and aired it on the school's morning news program. The students also uploaded the video to Facebook and invited their friends to attend the book fair using this social network.

To generate student excitement, Crew members hosted several contests during the book fair, including a classroom door decorating contest and a "Dress as Your Favorite Book Character" day. In addition, the school principal offered students a "sweet" incentive for purchasing books at the fair. For each Book Fair purchase, students were awarded tickets for a drawing. The winners of the drawing got a chance to turn their principal into a human banana split by covering him in whipped cream, chocolate syrup, and cherries.

Students gave back to their school by participating in the One for Books® program. Teachers posted pictures of themselves as babies onto collection jars and displayed them in the library. During the week of the Book Fair, students could vote for the cutest baby by dropping loose change into the corresponding jar. The proceeds of the program were used to purchase books for the Guys Read and Girls Read section of the library.

Other fun Book Fair activities included group book discussions and a family night event featuring a visit from Clifford the Big Red Dog and his friend Emily Elizabeth.

Scholastic Book Fairs Executive Director Bobby Pacheco praised the level of enthusiasm and competitive spirit shown by Graves County Middle School and other schools across the country involved in the Book Fair program.

EKU Libraries Launch Encompass

Eastern Kentucky University Libraries have recently launched Encompass, an online institutional repository designed to preserve, spotlight and disseminate the research and creative works of EKU faculty, staff and students as well as preserve the history of the University. The digital archive, located at encompass.eku.edu is "a reflection of all the scholarly activity at Eastern and a starting point of the University and EKU Libraries becoming our own publishers," explained Linda

Sizmore, Government Documents Team Leader for EKU Libraries. "It provides worldwide access, via the Internet, to what EKU faculty, staff and students are doing."

The publications and presentations of EKU faculty and staff, as well as departmental and college newsletters are rapidly being added to Encompass. Beginning this fall, Encompass will begin to feature students' electronic theses and dissertations. The repository also includes recent EKU sports media guides and some University Archives material, including yearbooks and University records.

The financial support of The Graduate School, The Office of Regional Stewardship, and EKU Libraries enabled EKU to become only the second college or university in Kentucky to launch an online institutional repository.

EKU Libraries Host Special Events

This spring, EKU Libraries have had the opportunity to host many special events, including the Appalachian Studies Association Conference, which attracted more than 700 Appalachian scholars, activists, and artists. EKU Libraries also hosted the Kentucky Na- tional History Day fifth district competition in March. Finally, the Main Library's Grand Reading Room served as the site for EKU's Literacy Showcase, developed in recognition of the Kentucky Literacy Celebration. The event included literacy-related activities, such as a Dr. Seuss Reading Corner, enjoyed by children from local schools.

EKU Libraries' Faculty and Staff Happenings

Faculty and staff at EKU Libraries and the Noel Studio have many exciting publications and presentations to celebrate!

Noel Studio student consultants Beth Brooks, Laney Miller, and Alex Smiley presented "Bringing Communication to the Forefront: Using Diverse Academic Experiences in an Integrated Space" at the Southeastern Writing Center Association Conference in February.

Dr. Russell Carpenter, Director of the Noel Studio for Academic Creativity, has worked with Melody Bowdon to publish Higher Education, Emerging Technologies, and Community Partnerships: Concepts, Models and Practices. The book is available as of late March 2011. To learn more, please visit <http://www.igi-global.com/bookstore/titledetails.aspx?TitleId=47442>.

Dr. Russell Carpenter, along with Noel Studio Coordinators Leslie Valley, Shawn Apostel and Trenia Napier presented "Stepping Up, Stepping Out: Collaboration, Creativity, and the Development of a New Space" at the Southeastern Writing Center Association Conference in February.

Librarians Laura Edwards and Kelly A. Smith presented "Managing eResource Workflow with Drupal" as part of the "Innovative eResource Workflow Strategies" panel session at the Electronic Resources and Libraries Conference in March. More information is available by visiting: <http://www.slideshare.net/kellysmith72/erl-2011-innovative-eresource-workflow-strategies-7274041>.

Noel Studio student consultants Dana McClain, Tricia Saab, and Stacy Wilder presented "Influential Spaces: Reflections on the Noel Studio for Academic Creativity's Impact on Consultation Styles" at the Southeastern Writing Center Association Conference in February.

Technology Specialist, Cristina Tofan, and Technology & Data Services Coordinator, Cindi Trainor, presented the course "Deciding with Data" for the Association of College & Research Libraries throughout February and March.

Cindi Trainor presented "Engaging, Interesting, & Practical Presentations to Capture Your Audience," along with Anna Creech, Amy Buckland, and Maurice Coleman at the Computers in Libraries Conference in March.

Cindi Trainor will also present "Darien Statements: Why you should Decide your own Core Philosophy?" along with John Blyberg and Kathryn Greenhill at the Public Libraries Western Australia Conference in early April.

Noel Studio student consultant, Stacy Wilder, presented "Relating to Students through the Family Guy" at the Southeastern Writing Center Association Conference in February.

The Noel Studio for Academic Creativity, located in EKU's Main Library, will become the new institutional home for the National Association of Communication Centers (NACC) listserv this year – the listserv is called Commcenters.

Nancy Davis, previously an Administrative Assistant for EKU's Department of Government, has joined EKU Libraries as the Noel Studio for Academic Creativity's first Administrative Assistant. She completed a BA in Paralegal Studies, a BA in Political Science, and an MPA at EKU from 2005-2010. Davis is also a member of the University's Staff Council.

Boyd County Public Library

Boyd County Public Library is opening its new, contemporary branch in the Kyova Mall, located in Cannonsburg, Ky., on May 1.

The 6,200 square foot branch features a children's area, large meeting room, teen space, and more public access computers. The mall location will also offer expanded hours, plentiful parking and year-round programming opportunities.

"Locating in a mall is a cutting-edge concept that fits our drive to innovate the ways in which we serve our patrons," said BCPL Board President Michael W. Campbell. "We will be better able to provide the items our patrons need, when and where they need it."

The BCPL board of trustees signed a 10-year lease agreement on the mall space in October.

When the mall branch opens, the library's outreach services department will relocate to the current Summit Branch, which will close to patron use at the end of April. This move will give BCPL more square footage to expand the materials and people who provide this valuable service to elderly and disabled patrons.

The Kyova Branch opening and expansion of the outreach department will mean 8-10 additional jobs throughout the library district.
